KEY RISKS

6. What are the key risks associated with this product?

General Risks of investing in unit trust:

Market Risks	Market risk refers to the possibility that an investment will lose value because of a general decline in financial markets, due to economic, political and/or other factors, which will result in a decline in the fund's net asset value.
Liquidity Risk	Liquidity risk refers to the ease of liquidating an asset depending on the asset's volume traded in the market. If the fund holds assets that are illiquid, or are difficult to dispose of, the value of the fund will be negatively affected when it has to sell such assets at unfavourable prices.
Management Company Risk	The performance of a fund is dependent upon the experience, knowledge, expertise and investment strategies adopted by the fund manager of the fund. Lack of experience, knowledge and expertise, as well as poor execution of the investment strategy or general management of the fund will jeopardise the unitholders' capital and returns. In view of this, proper training and stringent selection of personnel to manage the fund as well as implementation of the fund's strategies are crucial towards mitigating this risk.
Risk of Non-Compliance	This is the risk where the fund manager does not comply with the provisions as set out in the trust deed, the laws/ guidelines that govern the fund or its internal procedures and policies. The non-compliance could be due to several factors such as a result of human errors and oversight, system failures or fraudulent acts by the fund manager. Whilst not every non-compliance will necessarily result in investment losses to the unitholders, there is still always a risk that the investments of the unitholders may be adversely affected, especially in situations where the fund manager is forced to sell the investments of the fund at a discount in order to resolve the non-compliance. In order to mitigate this risk, the fund manager has imposed stringent internal compliance controls.
Loan Financing Risk	This risk occurs when investors take a loan/financing to finance their investment. The inherent risk of investing with borrowed money includes investors being unable to service the loan repayments. In the event units are used as collateral, an investor may be required to top-up the investors' existing instalment if the prices of units fall below a certain level due to market conditions. Failing which, the units may be sold at a lower net asset value per unit as compared to the net asset value per unit at the point of purchase towards settling the loan.
Concentration Risk	This is the risk of a fund focusing a greater portion of its assets in a smaller selection of investments. The fall in price of a particular investment will have a greater impact on the fund and thus greater losses. This risk may be mitigated by the investment manager conducting even more rigorous fundamental analysis before investing in each security.

Specific risks subject to the characteristics of the type of securities that the Fund invests in:

Interest Rate Risk	Interest rate risk is crucial in this Fund since bond portfolio management depends on forecasting interest rate movements. Prices of bonds move inversely with interest rates and the degree of price sensitivity to interest rates is a function of bond maturity as well as the level of interest rates. In the event of rising interest rates, prices of bond will decrease and vice versa. The interest rate will be mitigated via the management of the duration structure of the bond portfolio, diversifying the investments in bond across different maturities and investing in bond.
Credit/ Default Risk	This risk refers to the ability of the issuer of a bond to make full and timely repayments of interest and principal. The risk is graded by credit rating agencies that rate or measure the issuer's ability to meet repayments. The lower the rating, the greater the risk that the bond issuer will default. All things being equal, the lower a bond's credit rating, the higher its yield should be to compensate investors for assuming additional risk. The Fund's credit risk can be mitigated through a rigorous and disciplined credit research and analysis to ascertain the creditworthiness of the issuer of a fixed income security prior to its investments. In addition, the Fund may also mitigate this risk by diversifying its investments in fixed income securities across many issuers.
Inflation Risk	Inflation reduces the purchasing power of money. Therefore in an inflationary environment, there is a possibility that income from bonds may not be able to keep up with inflation. This risk can be mitigated by investing in bonds that can provide positive real rate of return.

Liquidity Risk	It is generally accepted that the Malaysian bond market is less liquid than the equity market. Thus, the Fund may not be able to liquidate its investments easily if there are no willing buyers. To mitigate this risk, the Manager will constantly review and monitor the Fund and actively manage asset allocations of the Fund.
